Tour Description

One of our wonderful driver/guides will be waiting as you disembark and welcome you on board your coach for the day. We'll depart through the ancient Port of Leith and make our way South. After a scenic drive over the rolling hills, we'll pass the impressive Leader foot Viaduct before stopping at the market town of Melrose and visiting its famous ruined gothic abbey - said to be the final resting place of the embalmed heart of Scotland's ancient King Robert the Bruce.

Following the beautiful River Tweed, we'll drive West through the Tweed Valley to the picturesque town of Peebles, where we'll stop at a traditional hotel for a lunch made up of locally sourced produce. Refreshed and revived, we'll continue North towards the quiet village of Roslin, where we'll visit the beautiful 15th-century chapel of Rosslyn, full of impressive architecture, exquisite stone carvings, and many mysterious tales. After a day surrounded by the beauty of the Scottish Borders, we'll return through the City of Edinburgh to the Port of Leith to return you to your ship.
